Fr. Anselm Adodo, OSB, is a Benedictine monk, Catholic priest, and transdisciplinary scholar whose work joins scientific inquiry, spiritual wisdom, and indigenous knowledge. He holds doctorates in medical sociology and in management of innovation and technology. For over two decades he led Paxherbal, the Nigerian phytomedicine research institution he founded, and holds two patents. He has convened scholars and spiritual leaders across five continents and developed the Communitalism framework. Author of numerous books, including The Healing Plants of Nigeria, he serves as Senior Research Fellow and Special Advisor at the Collegeville Institute, Minnesota. His work connects research, culture, and community